Make Bethel Streets Safer

Bethel village faces the need of a serious and complete revision of its driving and walking habits if it is to keep on without an auto-pedestrian accident or fatality.

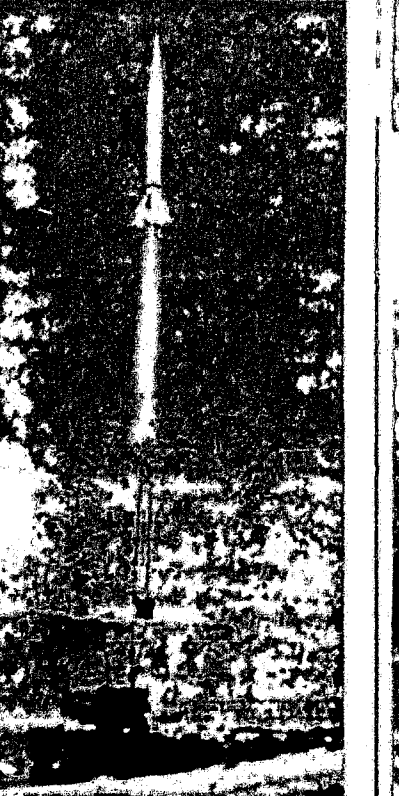

The location of the new grade school building makes it necessary for a large number of the pupils to walk considerable distances on streets without the protection of sidewalks. Mason and Spring streets have no sidewalks at all, and on Chapman Street the part-way sidewalk is seldom used.

Village pupils are thus forced to travel these ways, none too wide anyway, and take their chances with the careless and hurrying motorists.

Only constant awareness of this real danger on the part of drivers and thorough education and frequent reminders at home and in school can maintain a clean record until improved streets and sidewalks are a reality.

BRIG. GEN. GEORGE M. CARTER, who has been appointed for the sixth successive year as Maine State Chairman for the March of Dimes.

ROCKET RECORD... Viking rocket roars from White Sands, N. M., proving grounds to new altitude record of 115 miles on its way to top speed of 4,100 m. p. h.

INSTRUMENTS NEEDED FOR LOCAL MUSIC PROGRAM

Local people having musical instruments not being used at present, and who are willing to loan, give or sell them, have an opportunity to help in the development of the program of instrumental music now being formed among the grade school pupils.

There is need for violins, clarinets, trumpets, trombones—any instrument suitable for band or orchestra use. It will be most helpful if such instruments can be on hand so that the pupils may determine their choice.

Persons who are willing to help in their way are asked to contact the teacher, Richard Barbour. His telephone is 48-2.

GOULD LACKS VETERANS: TO TACKLE SEVEN GAME SLATE

The Gould Academy 1951 football squad met with Coach Bob Scott for the initial practice on Sept. 10. Only one regular from last year's team is back in Roger Adams, center and captain. Others who saw sufficient service to gain a letter are Paul Bartlett, hb; Norm Ferguson, end; Bob Patterson, guard; Henri Agness, qb; Pete Johnson, end; Frank Murphy, fb; Fred Smith, guard; and Don Bennett, center. Those returning from last year's J. V. team are W. Gilman, Staples, U. Bartlett, Sweeney, Taylor, Jewett, Olson, Wilson, Swift, Linnell, Melville, Jodrey, T. Smith and H. Adams.

Biden, a transfer from Mexico and Burnham, a freshman are the most likely looking of the new men. Others on the squad, mostly freshmen, are Daley, Flood, Rowe, Davis, Edelman, Corkum, Butler, Moore, R. Gilman, Tyler, Leighton, Bragg, and Gross.

The team this year lacks experience and speed. A starting lineup of fair sized youngsters can be mustered from the squad but reserve material will be sadly lacking. The late start is also a handicap in that they will be playing their first games against teams that have as many as three games under their belt.

Dick Emery of Bethel, a Junior, has been selected as manager of football.

The following is the 1951 schedule:

15 Killed On Maine Roads Last Month

Fifteen persons were killed in 14 traffic accidents during August. Eleven of these deaths were the result of accidents occurring in rural areas. The other four, of whom three were pedestrians, took place in urban sections.

The apparent causes of motor vehicle deaths for August were unusually diversified. The only accident causes with more than one death assigned were defective equipment and driving after drinking with four each.

There were 162 personal injury accidents injuring 232 people as compared with 153 last year causing injury to 263 people. Property damage accidents also show an increase with 314 for this August against 295 a year ago.

With highway fatalities off 14% from last year, Maine has experienced the best 8 months on record. This, in all probability will not continue. We are now commencing the most dangerous season of the year. Statistics show that for the past 15 years we average 20 traffic deaths for each of the last four months of the year. This would be almost double that of the first eight months.

This unnecessary slaughter can be reduced. We know from past experience that many of these killed will be children. For this reason September's Safety Theme is 'Child Safety'.

The death of a child in traffic is a blot on the record of every person in your community. And no matter how safe your town may have been to date, potential death of a child lurks on every corner, along every street.

It is the parent's job to grow into adult attitudes and developing understanding, because his experiences are yet limited and his knowledge of reality and consequences is incomplete, because he is impressionable and sensitive to the example of others, the child needs safety education. He needs the guidance of a safe example by others, he needs protection from his own impulses.

It is the parent's job to teach the child to be safe, to be careful, to be responsible, to be a good citizen, to be a good person, to be a good example to others.

SUCCESSFUL PARENTHOOD

By
Mrs. CATHERINE
CONRAD
EDWARDS
Associate Editor,
Parents' Magazine

"I MAKE my old fur coat do piano lessons this fall." How many mothers have pondered similar sacrifices and fathers, too, been willing to give up personal needs for the sake of the children. Of course, it happens every day, for parenthood requires self-sacrifice. Kept within sensible bounds, this ability to put others first is a most satisfying experience, particularly if the children appreciate the things being done for them.

But suppose those piano lessons are really a secret yen of Mother's, and not something Janie wants or will benefit from, since there isn't a spark of music in the child. If Mother is going to pay for them by doing without a new coat, why shouldn't she take the lessons herself? After all, a family is made up of individuals and every person, be he parent or child, deserves and needs some interest apart from the cares of the home.

I know of a father who at 45 started taking piano lessons. Though he never became a virtuoso, he became competent enough to accompany family singing sessions and his playing provided many happy hours for himself and for others. Adults who bemoan the fact that they didn't take advantage of the opportunities of youth forget that it's never too late to learn something for which you have a natural bent.

Parents who have no ability to amuse themselves are often a worry to their grownup children. The young people cannot help but see the unhappiness caused their doing parents by the natural desire for an independent and separate home life of their own. How much more joyful for everyone if the old folks seek new adventures when their children marry and let the young marrieds be the ones to settle down. Another couple of my acquaintance began, as soon as their children were all gone from home, to see this country from Maine to California. They've explored nearly every state by now and have pictures to prove it. When they return from a jaunt, a big celebration awaits them—the children and their families gather for a reunion and to see pictures and a detailed account of Mother and Dad's latest trip. In this way the "old folks" are a stimulating element in the family during the years their children are tied down raising families of their own.

The thing to keep in mind is this: If for 25 years you get all of your satisfaction from business or keeping house or raising your children it isn't easy to find new outlets when these no longer count. So keep up your music or dancing or painting—whatever gives you a glow of accomplishment. Then when a reality—these satisfactions will be ready for you to turn to. Scarcely anyone grows old these days, so who knows, you may still have time to make a new career for yourself!

THE STARS

By LYN CONNELLY

HAPPIEST DAY since the advent of summer was the return to the air of TV's wonderful "Edna, Fran and Ollie" . . . The Friday before their new series started, the press was invited to a homecoming party by Burr Tillstrom, creator and mentor of the Eukalipollans . . . Just returned from Europe, they were bursting with news of their trip . . . En route Ollie found a real French "hill-billy" time in the French hills, which he provided with sock results . . . He recorded, we can safely predict, "Goodnight, Irene," "Cold Heart," "My Heart Goes For You" and others like "Milk and Honey" . . . We also procured a picture for you of Ollie, getting his trim for fall football.

After all these years, "Your Hy Paralel" may shift this fall from its traditional Saturday night spot to Thursday evenings . . . Filming of the new Marie Lanza picture reportedly delayed while the tenor has to reduce 20 pounds . . . It might be wise if, during this same regime, he learns to control his temper as well . . . If NBC doesn't come up with a suitable show for Dagmar, the comedienne may become a permanent member of Frank Sinatra's new TV show which, this season, will be on Mr. Television, Milton Berle.

PLATTER CHATTER
CAPTIVE: A wonderful new album released by Capitol last week is "Sweet and Low" featuring the smooth orchestra of Lin Fairbairn . . . Includes memorable tunes as "I'm a Fool for You," "Just One More Chance," "Ray, He's Got Me," "Thanks," and "Honey." . . . In singles, Dean Martin's latest waxing is among his best . . . "In the Cool, Cool, Cool of the Evening" . . . "Bonnie Nait" . . . Les Baxter has a fine rendition of "Vanity" with "The World Is Mine" on the reverse.

And for you lovers of the square dance, there's "Square Dance Party" with calls and instructions by Lee Gatcher.

ARCHERS ENTITLED TO BUT ONE DEER IN HUNTING SEASON

Chief Fish-Game Warden Lester E. Brown reminds archers that the law still allows each hunter but one deer a year, despite the special bow-and-arrow season in Franklin and Somerset counties, Oct. 10-15, inclusive.

"If a bowman takes a deer, he cannot shoot another deer with rifle or shotgun during the regular open season," Brown states.

Specific inquiries about law interpretation from a wide area cause the Chief Warden to add the following:

All resident bowmen must secure licenses through the Fish and Game office, State House, Augusta. Non-residents may buy theirs through the Maine Publicity Bureau or from special agents in Farmington, Rangeley, Stratton, Skowhegan, Bingham and Jackman.

The season, Oct. 1-15 inclusive, actually is a special season to allow archers to hunt in Franklin and Somerset counties without competition from rifle and shotgun shooters. The special license is good for deer only and only Oct. 1-15.

With a regular hunting license, it always has been and still is permissible to hunt game animals and game birds during the regular open season with bow and arrow, or firearms. However, an archery hunter may not carry firearms of any kind when hunting deer with bow and arrow.

Hunting bows must have a minimum 40-pound pull and arrowheads a minimum width of 7/8 of an inch, a maximum width of 1 1/2 inches.

As a firearm must be transported unloaded in a car, so must a bow be carried unstrung.

Bow and arrow hunters must have their deer checked by a warden before it is certified. The law reads: "If the warden finds the deer to have been legally killed by bow and arrow he shall approve the deer for registration. If it appears to the warden that the deer was not legally killed with and arrow he shall seize the deer and prosecute the offender." Brown thinks most archery hunters will transport their deer to the nearest checking station and contact a warden there.

Music resembles poetry; in each are numerous graces which no methods teach, and which a master hand alone can reach. —Pope

NEW SANDWICH
Chickenfurter Eyd For Spot On World's Sandwich Menu

WILL THE CHICKENFURTER take its place beside the frankfurter and the hamburger in American favor and vocabulary? Such a sandwich has been proposed by a Cornell University poultry expert as a means of marketing the fast-increasing chicken supply. Meat of the older birds could be rolled into frankfurter form and possibly canned, he suggests.
America considers its two roadside and picnic specialties, the frankfurter and the hamburger, peculiarly its own. Both, however, were German imports, derived from Frankfurt link sausage and Hamburg ground beef. American accent came with new seasoning and relishes, and nationwide use in long and round rolls.
In variations on the theme, the Yankee have gone a step further, with cheeseburgers, nutburgers, fishburgers, and others, thus raising a troublesome question for serious students of language quirk: Where is the ham in hamburger?

Old World Favorites
German immigrants, pouring into the United States after 1848, brought with them many Old World eating habits and words. Along with hamburger and frankfurter were pumpernickel, schweizer (cheese) and wienerwurst, or Viennese sausage, destined to be shortened to wiener or wienie. Invention of the "hot dog," as now served, came later. It is usually attributed to a concessionaire operating in the New York Polo Grounds around 1900. It was he, history relates, who introduced the slim Frankfurter sausage in toasted or beated roll, with an extra dash of mustard or other condiment.

Although the date is uncertain, logic suggests it was around this time that the old nickname "dachshund sausage" turned into "hot dog."

Since then, the snack so closely associated with Americans at play has done considerable world traveling. It was even reported some years ago that a Shanghai department store had introduced the item, complete with roll, mustard or ketchup, and was selling some 500 a day to Chinese customers.

Ancient Concoction
The basic idea of the sandwich—two pieces of bread with meat or other filling between—is much older than is commonly believed. Although reintroduced as the inspiration of England's 18th century, Earl of Sandwich, whose name it bears, the concoction has been traced as far back as the ancient Romans.
